APRIL 24, 2024
4:00pm

Being an Economist can be extremely interesting and rewarding. Helping people, companies and industries understand the economic environment will lead them to make better decisions. It's part math, part social studies and part communication skills.

The job of an economist isn't just one specific role – there are many different career paths. All of them, however, have the goal of explaining what's happening now, and how we can plan for what might happen next.

Todd Hirsch, economist and Ted Talk speaker, will talk more about this thought-provoking career.
